WINNER OF THE GERMAN BOOK AWARD

THE DEUTCHER JUGENDLITERATUR PREIZ 2021

OUR OWN LITTLE PARADISE

Original title: Syden

by Marianne Kaurin

Marianne Kaurin has written a multi-layered children's book with interwoven narrative strands. The child's play is impressively staged as an autonomous space where the children actively can develop themselves and be strengthened for reality. The characters are convincing and in harmony with each other, and so are the adult characters in their finely balanced representation. Franziska Hüther manages to translate the author's sensitive language perfectly and to effectively place the ambiguous humor.

YA • 300 pp

When the group of friends organise a trip up north to Unstad in Lofoten for the summer holidays, the king-to-be Karl Johan also devises his own, secret plan. Not only is he going to win back his ex-girlfriend Lena, he's going to show the Norwegian people that he is more than just a party prince. But nothing goes to plan. Karl Johan is a newcomer in the surf town of Unstad, and the local heroes end up stealing both the girls and his pride, and when the sun never sets, everything comes to light. Can Karl Johan win both Lena and the entire kingdom?

In the Royalteen series we follow the royal twins, Prince Karl Johan and Princess Margrethe, and their friends at high school. The series are modern love stories, portraying the struggles and joys of being young and today's pop culture.

#1 The Heir

Can there be a future for Karl Johan, first in line to the throne, and Lena, the secret teenage mum?

#2 Prince Charming

Last year's prom ended in major drama for Princess Margrethe, and the problems are piling up for the Royal family. Who is a real princess allowed to date?

#3 On the Throne

When her video goes viral, TikTok star Tess is praised for her fight against racism. But what happens when she falls in love with the pop artist she accused of being a racist?

Have you ever wondered what it's like dealing with teenage issues while being a part of the royal family, then the Royalteen books are for you!

Praise for #1 The Heir:

This book is a sure-fire hit! Funny, feel-good royal goodies plus teenage issues. The Heir is a Kinder egg of a YA book. (...) with what looks like a fairy tale happy ending – until the very last sentence. I jump out of my chair – and literally scream for a follow-up. The authors have to get a move on. This book simply has to be a hit.

Cathrine Krøger, Dagbladet, 5/6 stars

... a social wet dream of a YA book.

Oda FaremoLindholm, VG, 5/6 stars

No wonder publishers were fighting to win this book.

Anne Cathrine Straume, NRK

... deserves to be as successful as the TV series "SKAM".

Britta Voergaard Poulsen, Litteratursiden

Praise for #2 Prince Charming:

... like a home-alone party that takes place entirely on young people's terms. (...) Such word-perfect prose and content makes for greedy readers. Every chapter is like a chunk of chocolate: even as you eat it, all you can think about is devouring the entire bar.

How I Spent the Money

Original title: Hva jeg gjorde med pengene
First publication: February 2022
Publisher: Aschehoug
YA • Age: 16+ • 350 pp
Reading material: English summary and excerpt, Norwegian ms

Johanne is a student and works as a journalist for the student magazine. She has been supported with a grant to travel with and write about the band "Ask for October" on their European tour. However, she hasn't written a single word, and she doesn't intend to either. Johanne only agreed to go on the tour to keep an eye on her little sister. That's because she knows that the band's charming guitarist, Torjus, is dangerous. Now she has to write to explain what she did with the money.

The story is original, fresh, and peppered with a glimpse of mood from the magic of live music, which nicely balances the heavy theme. (...) Skolem's writing is trustworthy and at times touchingly raw. (...) Johanne's story raises an important and often ignored issue, which is perpetual relevant. Especially for young people. I dare say that unfortunately there are many, far more than we think, who have something in common with Johanne. That is why this book is important.

Shana Fevang Mathai, NRK

MAREN SKOLEM (b. 1991) is a scriptwriter for TV and film, among them the HBO TV series Beforeigners and the Netflix series Post Mortem. She earned the 2018 Amanda Award for her short film script. Skolem has a degree from the Norwegian Film School and has studies in creative writing.

Top Girl

Original title: Top Girl
First publication: October 2021
Publisher: Aschehoug
Age: 13+ • 200 pp
Reading material: English summary, Norwegian ms

Elli is top girl. She always raises her hand, she's on first name terms with her teachers, and she stands at the top of her cheerleading team's pyramid formation. But when it starts getting a little too difficult to hide the fact that the letters hop and dance around the page, and her friends decide to pretend that she doesn't exist, her worst nightmare is realised. She falls. As everything else falls apart too, and nothing is as it should be, how will Elli bring herself to get back on her feet again?

A book that contains so much wisdom.
Marianne Lystrup, Vårt Land

Bertine Zetlitz has written her way into the elite of this year's debut writers, with a solid novel about the drive for success and reading disorders among children.

Astrid Fosvold, Periskop

Top Girl is an excruciating and brutally honest story about not showing weakness, being the first and the best, while also being small and vulnerable.

(...) a combination of the linguistic intensity, the creativity and the content of the novel that makes this story so engaging.

Jonas Hansen Meyer, NRK

BERTINE ZETLITZ (b. 1975) is a music artist, composer, and author. She is a four-time recipient of the Norwegian Grammy Awards "Spellemannsprisen". She has published a fiction novel for adults, Top Girl is her first young adult novel.
